Dialogue 1: Asking for the things you need

A: Excuse me. Can I have a glass of water please?

B: Sure. Anything else, sir?

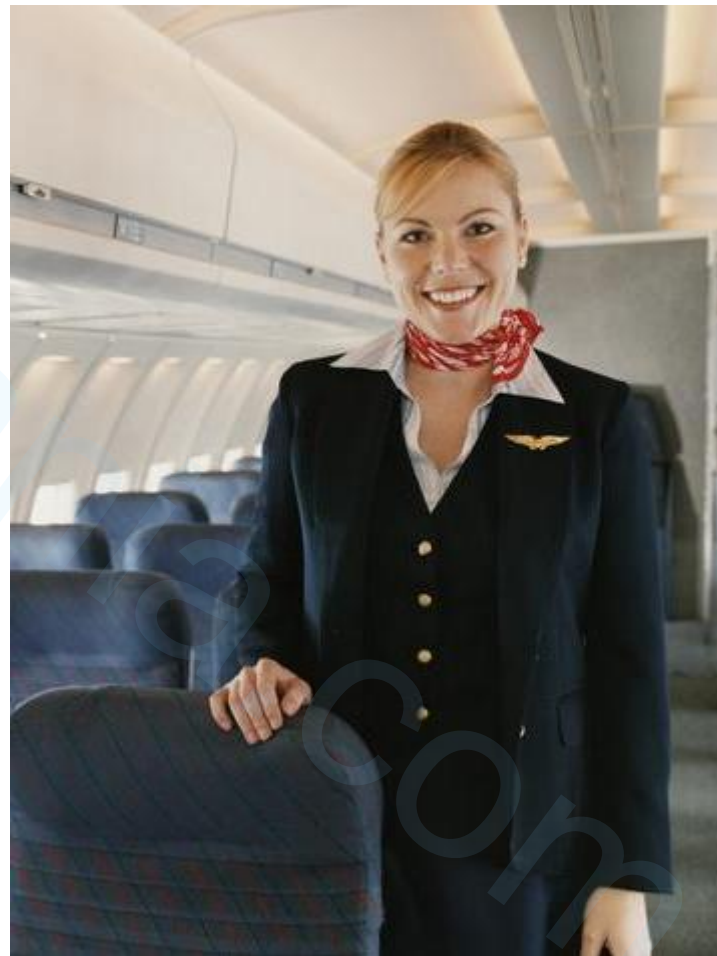

A: Oh, yes. Would it be okay if I asked for another blanket? This doesn't cover me up completely.

B: Of course, sir. Here's a glass of water. And here's your blanket, too.

A: One more thing, do you have any cup noodles?

B: I'm afraid we don't have anything like that, sir. Would you like some peanuts instead?

A: That would be lovely.

Dialogue 2: When you're sick

A: Ow...Ow... Excuse me. I think I have a problem.

B: Aren't you feeling well, sir?

A: I'm afraid not. I feel like throwing up.

B: Has this symptom ever happened before?

A: Lots of times, usually when I'm in a car.

B: Then would you like some pills to soothe your stomach?

A: Yes, I'd like that. With lukewarm water please.

Dialogue 3: Filling out an entry card

A: Excuse me. What does Port of Embarkation mean?

B: It means the place where you got on this plane.

A: Aha! It's Incheon then.

B: Seoul will also do.

A: Thank you. But I don't have an address in America. How can I fill out the address in America?

B: Just write down the name and address of your hotel.

A: Oh, I see. Can you check whether I've filled out this card correctly?

B: Sure. Let me see. Yes, you've done it right.
